SENSATION BY GOMPERS

President of the American Federation of Labor

SURPRISES THE MEETING.

States an Offer Was Made to Make Him Financially Secure if He Would Sign a Paper and Aid in Exposing the Leaders of Federation.

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 21.—A great sensation was created in the American Federation of Labor Wednesday afternoon by President Gompers in his speech replying to the attacks upon him and other officers of the Federation by the Manufacturers' association when he told of an alleged attempt to bribe him at the Victoria hotel in New York in October by a young newspaper man giving his name as Charles Brandenburg, the latter, President Gompers said, having declared that he represented the Manufacturers' association, and he was prepared to offer him immunity from exposure and make him financially secure the remainder of his life if he would sign a certain paper and otherwise aid in the "exposure of leaders in the American Federation of Labor" with the idea virtually of destroying the influence of organized labor of the country. President Gompers drew forth the original document and read it.

President Gompers was at times caustic, and the speech, which lasted more than an hour in delivering, was filled with strictures on the Manufacturers' association and its alleged agents.

At the close of President Gompers' speech there was a great demonstration, even Victor L. Berger of Milwaukee, the Socialist opponent of Mr. Gompers, with uplifted arms declaring that he would move to make Gompers' election unanimous with a vote of confidence to President Gompers and all the officers of the American Federation of Labor.

A motion offered by W. D. Ryan of Springfield, Ill., reporting that the Illinois Mine Workers' union had voted to President Gompers' confidence in his every act and deed was adopted amid applause.

DENIED BY BRANDENBURG.

Said He Himself Was Intended Victim of the Plot.

New York, Nov. 21.—Broughton Brandenburg, president of the National Institution of Immigration and a magazine writer, in a statement dictated, emphatically denied that he had attempted to bribe President Gompers. He himself, he said, had been the intended victim of the plot. He declared that Gompers' statement was an effort to forestall the effect of what he knew as about to be published.

Brandenburg's statement, in part, is as follows: "I have been collecting for a magazine data on the conduct of the American Federation of Labor by Samuel Gompers and certain others of its principal officers since its organization. The matter has gradually grown into what will be a great sensation when it is disclosed. Mr. Gompers has made an effort to forestall this. For months I and my men have been tracked by spies, and Mr. Gompers felt sure that I had a sufficiency of material to make a serious case."

The statement continues to the effect that a party visited Mr. Brandenburg at the Hotel Victoria, where he was staying, and attempted to buy him off. The offer he declined, he said, as he had declined other offers of a similar nature since he began his investigations. The caller said that he was open to a counter-proposition. The party, Mr. Brandenburg says, offered to assist him in the work he was doing.

The statement then continues: "I told him that I was about to leave for the south, and that I would communicate with him as soon as I had anything to say. Various communications passed between us up to Oct. 28. On that date Mr. Gompers came to New York to meet me. We then together discussed a proposition. I am connected with the National Manufacturers' association, but his proposition was one that must later be taken up by them as the parties who are principally interested. James W. Van Cleave, president of the Manufacturers' association, was in the city at the time, but I did not know it. While Gompers and I were conducting discussions, and I was endeavoring to get legal counsel, my men in the Hotel Victoria found that there was a plot laid for me on Sunday, the 27th. This trap I successfully evaded, and called all meetings with Mr. Gompers off before the matter was even put before the officers of the Manufacturers' association. Mr. Gompers wished to know what I had secured in the way of material in the south, and in order to mislead him I gave him a fictitious typewriter page, incomplete and unsigned. This is the paper which he has read so dramatically.

"I am a friend of labor unions, and want to see the members of honest labor in control of honest leaders. Mr. Gompers has foolishly precipitated a storm on the heads of himself and his friends. I shall have more to say."

EPISTLES ARE ENDEARING

Senator Brown Used Numerous Loving Expressions.

"LITTLE MINT JULEP" ONE

Declared That if He Could Get So He Could Live Always With Mrs. Bradley Both of Them Would Grow Young and Happy Together.

Washington, Nov. 21.—It has become evident that various letters written by former United States Senator Brown, to Mrs. Bradley and those written by Mr. Bradley to Mr. Brown will form an important part of the testimony in the case against her on the charge of murdering Mr. Brown. More than 100 of Brown's letters to the woman were identified in court Wednesday and a smaller number from her to Brown were also presented for the same purpose. The letters have been classified by both sides to controversy and they will be presented to the jury from time to time as the case progresses.

In most of the letters from Senator Brown to Mrs. Bradley he addressed her as "Dolly," but this is frequently changed for the words, "Sweetheart," "Love," "Beloved," "Dear Heart," "Angel," "Darling," "Wife" and "L. M. J." The meaning of the initials as developed in Mrs. Bradley's testimony Wednesday is "Little Mint Julep" which was one of his pet names for her.

The letters are full of endearing expressions, and in them the senator seems to have laid bare many phases of his character. All the letters are not now available, but quotations from several of them sufficiently indicate the character of all. Take, for instance, the postscript to the letter written by Brown to Mrs. Bradley, April 28, 1902, which runs as follows: "I have been and am so cross and savage at your performances and violations of your pledge to me that I can hardly see, but cannot leave this letter without telling you what I think, that I love you more than all the world. I am sick without you. My life is wretched when you are doing these things. What can I do to help you? I sent you a check for $50 and telegraphed Jones to pay you $25. Did you get both? Do write. Do try at least to be good and write me, I love you. I love you."

On May 4 he wrote Mrs. Bradley, telling her he had written his will and would forward it to her for safe keeping, and added: "I am worrying about you today and loving you intensely. I love you all the time. Will wire you daily until I go to the farm."

On the next day he said: "This morning is very bright, and after I looked at your picture I felt a warm thrill of love and life and know that you got my telegram and love me and know that I love you. Will send you another telegram tonight."

He then speaks of his sickness the day before and adds: "I get so tired at night that I cannot sleep or think. But, darling, if I once get so I can live with you night and day we will grow young and happy together. I believe the day is at hand. I sent you $50 last night, making $125 since you have been in Los." Evidently meaning Los Angeles, where she then was.

Will Go Uninstructed.

Birmingham, Ala., Nov. 21.—Chairman J. O. Thompson of the Republican state executive committee of Alabama stated positively that the Alabama delegates will go to the national Republican convention uninstructed to vote for President Roosevelt. Mr. Thompson is generally recognized as the leader of his party in Alabama, and for this reason his words have special weight.

CONTROLLING BOLL WEEVIL.

Interesting Resume of an Important
Bulletin from Agricultural Department.

Since it became a settled conviction that the boll weevil has come to stay the cotton farmers welcome anything that offers hope of relief from his ravages. What appears to be the best plan to lessen the evil is described in Circular No. 95, of the United States Department of Agriculture. We quote the first paragraph:

"It has been repeatedly pointed out in publications of the Department of Agriculture that the most important step in controlling the boll weevil is the removal of the plants from the field as early as practicable in the fall. This was one of the original suggestions made by the Chief of this Bureau when the boll weevil was confined to a comparatively small area in Texas. Much subsequent work has shown the value of the original recommendation. Unfortunately the process of fall destruction of plants for controlling the boll weevil has been taken up but slowly by the planters. This is largely on account of the practical difficulties relating to the tenant system and the scarcity of labor which has interfered with picking out the crop.

"The agitation of the necessity for procuring an early crop in order to avoid damage by the cotton boll weevil has been carried on to such an extent by the Department of Agriculture that the details have become common knowledge. There is, however, a tendency on the part of many planters to lose sight of the fact that procuring an early crop is but one step, and is strictly secondary to the great essential step, namely, the destruction in the fall of the plants in the field. As a matter of fact, early planting, the use of early varieties, and the use of fertilizers are simply to further the advantage gained by the process of fall destruction."

The circular goes on to describe in detail an experiment on a large scale, made by the Bureau of Entomology, in Calhoun and Lavaca counties. "An isolated locality was found where over 400 acres of cotton was grown. Arrangements by contract with the farmers concerned under which all the cotton plants were uprooted and burned during the first ten days of October. Provision was also made to prevent the growing of volunteer or sprout cotton. About thirty miles away from the locality where the experiment was performed a considerable quantity of cotton was grown. In this region the stalks were not destroyed and observations made here were used as a check upon the experimental area."

In May of the following year a thorough search of the locality where the cotton stalks had been destroyed in October resulted in finding but one weevil, while in the locality where the stalks had not been burned the weevils were so numerous that practically all the squares had been destroyed. Other observations were made throughout the season, all showing practically the same result. In spite of the fact that the soil of the isolated area was poorer than that of the check area, the former yielded about three times as much cotton as the latter, conclusively showing the practical value of the work of destroying the stalks.

The reasons for the destruction of the plants in the fall are stated as follows:

First.—Fall destruction prevents absolutely the development of a multitude of weevils which would otherwise become adult within a few weeks of the time of hibernation. The destruction of the immature stages of weevils in infested squares and bolls is accomplished, while the further growth of squares which may become infested later is also prevented. This stops materially the development of the weevils which would normally hibernate successfully, and by decreasing the number of weevils which will emerge in the spring, the chances for a successful crop the following season are very greatly increased.

Second.—A proper manipulation of the stalks will bring about the destruction of a great majority of the weevils which are already adult.

Third.—It has been shown conclusively that the bulk of the weevils which survive the winter are those which reach maturity late in the season. It is evident that the weevils that pass the winter and attack the crop of the following season are among those developed latest in the fall, and which, in consequence of that fact, have not exhausted their vitality by depositing eggs for any considerable length of time. Fall destruction of the plants, increasing the length of the hibernating period, reduces many fold the number of weevils in the fields that would otherwise emerge in the spring to damage the cotton.

Fourth.—Clearing of the field in the fall makes it possible to practice fall plowing, which is not only the proper procedure in any system of cotton raising, but also greatly facilitates the early planting of the crop the following spring. The ground becomes clean by this practice, so that but few places for shelter are left for the weevils, and various climatic conditions still further reduce the number of survivors."

A number of other experiments are described with results in harmony with the first. As to the best time to destroy the plants, the circular says it is when the weevils have become so numerous that all or nearly all the squares are punctured. In Texas this is generally in October. Two methods of destroying the stalks are described, the one recommended being as follows:

"There are two effective methods of removing the plants from the ground. One of these, the method to be preferred, is to cut the roots two or three inches beneath the surface by the use of an ordinary plow. The other is to pull out the stalks by the use of a lever provided with a toothed notch which grasps the base of the plant. The latter process is better adapted for use when the plants have been killed by frost. When they are still green, or ground is dry, it is frequently a difficult matter to remove them with these levers. The Department's general recommendation, therefore, is that the plants should be plowed out. As soon as possible after this is done they should be collected by hand or by means of rakes and brought together in large heaps or windrows. It is very important that this collection should take place before the leaves have become dry and have dropped off. When the plants are carried to heaps immediately after uprooting, all of the leafage, which will be dry in a few days, remains to facilitate the burning of the stalks.

After the stalks have become dry enough they should be burned. If the weather be fair, this can be done in about two weeks. If rains cause a lengthening of this period, it would undoubtedly be worth the cost to the planter to purchase crude oil sufficient to bring about the complete burning of all the stalks.

In conclusion the circular gives the following impressive summary:

"Having tested the methods of weevil control which have been hitherto recommended, the writer firmly believes the destruction of the stalks in the early fall is the most effective method known of actually reducing the numbers of the pest. This destruction will cost but a small fraction of the expense necessary in the frequent picking up in the spring of the square infested by the hibernated weevils, and far more thorough as a means of reducing the numbers of the weevils than is the practice of picking hibernated weevils from the young plants. Early destruction of the stalks is essential to the greatest success of any system of controlling the pest. All other practices recommended, though very valuable in securing a crop, are of the greatest value as they are followed in connection with this one prime essential. Since the earliest investigations of the boll weevil made by this department it has been recognized and pointed out by Dr. L. O. Howard that this practice is of the first importance, and the experience of recent years has added but certainty to this conviction. A number of planters have adopted it, and their work and large scale work by the Bureau of Entomology have abundantly demonstrated its effectiveness. It must not be thought that the procuring of the immediate crop is the only thing to be desired. Early and complete destruction of the stalks is undoubtedly the most important single element insuring success for the subsequent year.

"Concerted action in fall destruction is, of course, desirable. The greatest benefit will only result when whole communities adopt the method. But no planter should hesitate on account of the indifference of his neighbors. The fact that weevils move about but little until the time when the bulk of the crop is safe will assist materially in saving one field though nearby ones have not been properly treated, and even under such circumstances the success of the method in one field will be a powerful stimulus toward its general adoption the following season.

"It is true that the recommendations contained in this circular involve considerable change in the practice of producing cotton. Nevertheless the important changes that have been brought about up to this time in the use of improved seed and fertilizers have also been revolutionary in their character. It is hoped by the Department that the agencies that assist in that matter—namely, organizations of business men—will everywhere devote the same energy toward encouraging the practice of what is after all the most important step in maintaining the supremacy of the cotton crop in the weevil regions."

POWELL-GLEE CLUB.

The A. and M. College Glee Club, twenty strong, Prof. T. P. Junkin, director, made good again last night before a large and appreciative Bryan audience. The club was fortunate in securing for this occasion two distinguished artists, Mr. Douglas Powell, baritone, and Mrs. Powell, pianist, whose classical numbers, mingled with the melody and humor of the Glee Club, afforded a varied and exceptionally pleasing program. Mr. Powell's voice is of rare quality and his singing faultless. Mrs. Powell has the complete mastery of the piano. Both responded to recalls, as did the Glee Club and the quartette. Indeed the Club and the quartette were recalled at every appearance.

This first appearance of the Glee Club this season shows the organization to be fully up to the high standard of the past and capable of reflecting credit upon themselves and the institution they represent on the tour they have in prospect after the holidays.

The peekaboo is packed away awaiting the dawn of a warmer day. But after the winter hibernation Will it challenge again our admiration. Or will some other fetching fad Make the hearts of winsome girls glad?

It matters not, for it must be confessed The girls are sweet, however dressed.

A very small girl was recently heard to utter this evening prayer: "Dear Lord, be awfully careful of yourself, for if we should lose you we have nobody but President Roosevelt, and papa does not like the way he acts." She evidently thinks it would be a fearful thing to fall into the hands of Roosevelt.

Her lovable christian character won the hearts of all with whom he was associated. We note that Hon. W. C. Davis of Brazos, has decided to make the race for State Senator. Mr. Davis is one of the strongest young men in the State in politics today and his course in the House throughout the eventful thirtieth was such that warrents his friends in believing that he has the making of fine political timber in him and the only thing we are sorry about is that we cannot help him in the race for the Senate. He deserves to succeed.—Navasota Examiner.

L. S. Williams of Harvey was in the city yesterday. Mr. Williams reports that a number of people are sustaining a heavy loss of cattle from bogging up during the recent very bad weather.

The finest coffee substitute ever made, has recently been produced by Dr. Shoop of Racine, Wis. You don't have to boil it twenty or thirty minutes. "Made in a minute" says the doctor. "Health Coffee" is really the closest coffee imitation ever yet produced. Not a grain of real coffee in it either. Health coffee imitation is made from pure roasted cereals or grains, with malt, nuts, etc. Really it would fool an expert—were he to unknowingly drink it for coffee. Sold by J. M. The fourth quarterly conference of the Methodist church will be held at church tonight and all the officers are especially requested to be present. I. F. BETTS, Pastor.

CONFERENCE HELD.

Governor Campbell, T. N. Jones and Editor Ousley the Participants. Austin, Nov. 21—A lengthy consultation was held Thursday between the governor, T. N. Jones of Tylene and Clarence Ousley, editor of the Fort Worth Record. It is said that consultation had to do with the speech of Senator Bailey at San Antonio, and latter's references to the governor. In answer to a question Attorney General Davidson declared he would file suit against the Texas company when he got proof or evidence. He did not indicate whether he would call on Senator Bailey to furnish proof, as the latter has declared that the Texas company is a subsidiary of the Standard Oil company. dit.

COMMERCIAL CONGRESS.

Great Deal of Business Comes Before Body.

Muskogee, Nov. 21.—At Wednesday's session of the Transmississippi Commercial congress Governor Fear of Hawaii introduced a resolution inviting the United States navy to visit Hawaii.

Ike T. Pryor of San Antonio introduced a resolution compelling the railroads to do away with car shortage. The resolution explained the car shortage.

Praising Oklahoma as being the only state in the Union that holds insurance at its proper importance, and the only state that made the insurance commissioner one of its executive officers, Darwin P. Kingsley, president of the New York Life Insurance company, declared that insurance is not a local, but a national, question, the question should be rated as such. President Kingsley argued as the property of life insurance companies represented by the assets should not be taxed for the local life insurance premiums in the public interest, should be exempt for the same reason as social church and public property is exempt from taxation.

Sam H. Cowan of Fort Worth, attorney and representative of the American Livestock association and the Cattle Raisers' Association of Texas, delivered an address on the western livestock industry. On the raising of cattle, he declared, depended the prosperity of the west. He explained and advocated inspection, and defended the beef trust as being a necessary factor in the handling in great volumes of trade.

J. F. Barstow of Barstow, Tex., president of the Society for the Drainage of Submerged Lands, declared if the swamp lands of the country were reclaimed enough land would be offered for 2,000,000 farm homes and the value of the nation's crop annually would be increased $2,000,000,000.

Thomas F. Walsh of Colorado strongly advocated national aid in the construction of good roads.

R. D. Francis of Missouri introduced a resolution commending the enactment of President Roosevelt in issuing bonds.

Various resolutions were introduced providing for the sale of surface coal land in Oklahoma to legitimate farmers; that the representatives of the Transmississippi states should urge their influence to place Charles Carter, representative of Oklahoma, on the Indian commission. E. N. Newell, a member of the inland waterways commission, spoke on the work of the commission.

A sweeping resolution favoring improvement of deep waterways of the country and their tributaries were passed at Wednesday night's session. A resolution recommending the establishment of a department of mining by the government was passed.

James F. Brinson of Colorado spoke on the need of a department of mining.

STRIKE IN INDIA.

Traffic on East India Railway Fast Becoming Paralyzed.

Calcutta, Nov. 21.—Traffic on the East Indian railway, 2,165 miles long and the second largest line in India, is rapidly becoming paralyzed by a strike. The trouble originated with the engineers, who are almost entirely European and great numbers of natives belonging to the traffic staff joined in the movement. The most important section of the road, from Calcutta to Allahabad, is practically tied up and already 6,000 passengers are stranded at Asansol, the Bengal junction of the East Indian and Bengal Napur railroad, where the strikers are threatening violence.

Jute mills are seriously affected by the strike. The strike at present is especially serious in view of famine conditions, which are becoming daily more widespread, necessitating immediate transportation of relief supplies.

GLOOMIER VIEW.

London, Nov. 21.—London papers take a gloomier view of the financial situation in the United States, and fears are expressed that the Bank of England will raise the rate of discount to 8 per cent.

The Tribune in an editorial says: "President Roosevelt has come to the last and most severe test of his public career. His recent speeches show that his heart is in the right place, that he knows the true center of mischief, and that he does not lack the courage to expose it. What is now wanted is prompt and determined application of positive statesmanship to the known facts of the case."

A note was found on his person saying sickness had made him a pauper and he treasured his body to the college before which he sought to take his life. On the back of a handbill was written: "There is no money to bury me, as my family is needing the necessities of life."

ORDEAL OVER.

Cross-Examination of Mrs. Bradley Has Come to an End.

Washington, Nov. 21.—Cross-examination of Mrs. Bradley was concluded Thursday morning at 12:25 o'clock. When she took the stand at 10:10 o'clock Attorney Baker began the questioning by bringing out the facts concerning Max Brown's stay at his Idaho farm in 1902. She said she did not leave the farm because of Max's presence there.

Mr. Baker brought out a statement from witness that she was arrested for adultery in 1902. Both she and Brown had been arrested three times on that charge Mrs. Bradley said Mrs. Brown instigated the arrests. She said that notwithstanding these arrests she continued her relations with Brown, both at Salt Lake and at the farm. Much notoriety was given the case, she said, when the arrests were made.

She said in reply to other questions that she continued to live with Brown notwithstanding the exposure of them by arrests.

She also told of visits of her pastor, Rev. Dr. Utter, to the farm in 1902.

"He came to see you at the instance of Mrs. Brown, did he not?" asked Mr. Baker.

"He said he did," the witness replied.

"Did he not try to get you to leave Mr. Brown?"

"He did."

Extracts from letters of Mrs. Bradley to Senator Brown were read in which the name Schroeder, Evans, McGuire and "the priest" were mentioned. Mrs. Bradley declared Senator Brown's jealousy of these men were not justified. She added she knew these gentlemen to be astonished to learn their names had been referred to.

When the relations between herself and Senator Brown first became known, Mrs. Brown, Mrs. Bradley said the senator instantly advised her to say nothing and deny everything.

Mrs. Bradley testified Brown and she frequently quarreled, and on one occasion she struck him in the mouth with an umbrella and he said cruel things to her.

Fort Worth, Nov. 21.—One of the curiosities of the stockyards is a half breed buffalo cow and two of her offspring, a bull and a steer, which arrived in a shipment of cattle from Cowden & Waddell's ranch near Midland. The cow closely resembles a native buffalo in color and contour, except that her horns are longer. The offspring appear closely allied to Herefords, being red in color and white of face. The cow is above ten years of age, it is said, the bull three years old and the steer six. The half breed cow or Catalo sold at $5.25 per 100 pounds and her weight was 1,130 pounds. C. C. Cunningham was the buyer.

SHOT ESCAPING.

Negro and White Boy Each Hit in Leg by Bullet.

Dallas, Nov. 21.—While policemen were raiding an alleged crap game at an early hour Thursday morning Tom Scroggins, a negro, in endeavoring to make his escape tumbled over an officer. Regaining his feet Scroggins continued his flight, but was hit in a leg by a bullet fired in his direction and captured.

While two white boys were, it is alleged, robbing the Dallas Electric Light company of copper wire officers appeared on the scene. They hurriedly departed, leaving 300 feet of booty and a wagon. Shots were fired by the patrolmen. It has now been ascertained that one of the juveniles received a bullet in a leg. Attending physicians say amputation may be necessary.
